

Mystery Sub Has Argentine Wanting Action

By BRIAN BELL

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — The "battle of Golfo Nuevo" went into the 15th day today with Argentines thirsting for action.

There was growing impatience—and suspicions—about the mystery submarine the navy claims it has trapped in the remote inlet in the South Atlantic.

Official silence about how things are going only whetted the appetite of the man-in-the-street who recalls that twice before within 21 months the navy reported sighting foreign submarines in Argentine territorial waters. Both got away without being identified.

Informants said that international law experts had told President Arturo Frondizi that Argentina is on firm legal grounds in attacking the submarine.

This reassurance came after the navy reported it had been firing away with depth charges in an attempt to force the strange intruder to emerge and surrender.

The corvette La Republica, carrying the most modern anti-submarine equipment the Argentine navy possesses, was ordered to the search scene from patrol duty several hundred miles to the north.

More powerful depth charges are being flown from the United States.

Navy authorities reported spotting the sub in Argentine waters in the South Atlantic 15 days ago.

Later they said the craft had been tracked into the Golfo Nuevo, a 40-by-20-mile body of water separated from the ocean by a narrow entrance.

"Despite the navy's claims, many Argentines are dubious about the sub's existence.

The international law experts reportedly told Frondizi that he can act under the 1958 Geneva conference on territorial waters. This holds that foreign vessels must get permission to operate in another nation's territorial waters.

Submarines are required to operate on the surface.

Plant Board Charged With Blacklisting

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A state legislator today charged the Arkansas Plant Board with "blacklisting" cotton farmers and ginners who fail to meet its requirements in the pink bollworm control program.

Rep. Marion Clark of Little River County asked the Arkansas Legislative Council to study his charges and make recommendations to the 1961 Legislature.

Clark declared that bollworm damage in Arkansas is "practically non-existent" at present and there is no need for what he called the board's stringent rules.

He said the board had "used its broad powers to circumvent the due processes of law normally carried out by the courts... by blacklisting farmers and ginners who, the board arbitrarily determines, have failed to comply with such regulations."

The lawmaker asserted that "costly regulations" imposed by the Plant Board were not justified. Clark said it has not been established that the pink bollworm poses a serious economic threat to Arkansas.

Paul Miller, chief inspector of the board, agreed the bollworm is not doing much damage at present. However, he added, the control program aims at wiping out the pest rather than simply bringing it under control.

The Legislative Council, out-of-session arm of the General Assembly, will take up the matter at a Feb. 19 meeting here.

Many Other Mysterious Space Orbits

MANHATTAN, Kan. (AP) — A member of the Manhattan moonwatch team said today the mysterious space traveler is not the only one in orbit of undetermined origin.

Prof. Walter Houston of Kansas State University said the station in Manhattan was requested several months ago to watch for several others. The request, he said, came from the Smithsonian Institution.

He said information from other moonwatch teams indicated there may be from four to six mystery objects in orbit.

The Manhattan station, Houston said, sighted one last summer in extremely high orbit.

The professor told radio station KMAN in Manhattan that he believes the objects are U.S. satellites whose radios failed to function. Beyond accidentally picking up a satellite or tracking gear, he explained, the only way to know whether one went into orbit was to receive its radio signals.

Thus if the radio fails to operate it could be in orbit and he wouldn't know it, he said.

Houston said he feels some of the Vanguard attempts, previously listed as failures, were successful and that the radios failed to function.

G. C. Allen, 83, of Fulton, Succumbs

George C. Allen, aged 83, died Thursday in a local hospital. He was born at Fulton and lived there all his life.

Survivors include a sister, Mrs. John Bieloh of Texarkana. Services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at Fulton Union Church by Dr. William McLean of Texarkana. Burial will be in Fulton Cemetery.

Another case of an alleged insurance fraud against a welfare recipient was reported from Independence County today.

Prosecutor Wayne Boyce of Newport said he "received a complaint that an insurance agent who gave the name of John W. Beck sold a policy to a welfare client at Sandtown.

Boyce said G. B. Martin, the client, reported paying $5.35 as the first premium on a hospital insurance policy.

Martin was quoted as saying he was told the policy was only for persons who will receive a $5 monthly raise in their welfare checks starting March 1.

Sheriff Burton Arnold of Batesville told Boyce the agent identified himself as a representative of the First United Insurance Co. of Tulsa, Okla. Arnold said he was trying to locate the man and to determine whether he sold any other policies in Independence County.

The Tulsa firm figured in an earlier case of alleged insurance misrepresentations in Lawrence County. Three persons have been charged at Walnut Ridge with fraudulent sales to welfare clients.

In another development, a "nice young man" who promised he could insure an increase in welfare payments collected $36 from a 70-year-old welfare client near Pine Bluff.

Mrs. Virginia Wright, Jefferson County Welfare agent, said she discovered the case while investigating reports of other smaller payments to a man making such claims. She also said four Humphrey residents gave $5 each last week on a similar promise.

The Jefferson County sheriff's office was asked to investigate.

$100,000 Is Okayed for Fish Research

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Appropriations Committee today approved $100,000 for operation of the fish farming research project in Arkansas during the first half of 1961.

The project is aimed at developing information on how idle rice ponds might be utilized for commercial production of fish.

Congress voted $350,000 last year for construction of experimental ponds near Stuttgart and Kelso and for a laboratory at Stuttgart. The program is to be operated by the government in co-operation with the University of Arkansas.

Although construction work is to be completed next January, President Eisenhower's budget recommended no money for operation of the project.

Arkansans, led by Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark) and Rep. W. F. Norrell (D-Ark) protested. Norrell, a member of the House Appropriations Committee, persuaded that group to include the $100,000 to operate the ponds and laboratory through June 30, 1961.

Norrell said the committee also increased the budget request for research on eradication and control of blackbirds by $70,000 for the year starting next July 1.

This increase was requested by a group of House members, headed by Rep. E. C. Gathings (D-Ark). They contend the birds are causing mounting crop losses.

The bill also provides $27,000 as asked by the budget—for the new Pea Ridge National Military Park at Pea Ridge, Ark. This sum is to finance management and operation of the park the first year.

France Sels Off A-Bomb Deep in Sahara

By HARVEY HUDSON

PARIS (AP) — France exploded a plutonium bomb deep in the Sahara Desert today and became the world's fourth atomic power.

President Charles de Gaulle announced France's first nuclear blast in a communique issued by the Defense Ministry. It declared France is now in a better position to negotiate with the United States, Britain and the Soviet Union toward nuclear disarmament.

The terse communique said an "atomic device" went off successfully from a tower at Point Zerd at Tanzeuf, deep in the desert near Reggane at 6 a.m.—1 a.m. EST.

The explosion came after more than a year in which no atomic blasts had been announced by the other powers pending negotiations on a test ban. France had made plain, however, she did not feel bound by this "gentlemen's agreement" to ban tests.

Three hours after the bomb exploded the Defense Ministry said that there was no radioactive fallout in inhabited regions of the Sahara area.

News of the blast was flashed from the test site 1,500 miles south of Oran to De Gaulle in Paris.

The announcement said the power of the bomb was what had been expected. It was understood to be equal to about 20,000 tons of TNT—the strength of the first American A-bombs to hit Hiroshima and Nagasaki at the end of World War II.

The Sahara blast is expected to have the following effects on diplomatic and military fronts:

1. Strengthen De Gaulle's hand when he plays host to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev next month and during the French President's ensuing trips to London and Washington.

2. Mark a big step toward giving France atomic capability although she will not have an appreciable nuclear punch until 1963.

3. Boost the morale of French military leaders who have been sensitive about not having atomic weapons in their arsenal, a factor that could improve French cooperation within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The explosion will also go a long way toward restoring the power of France in the councils of the world—one of De Gaulle's prime aims since he took power in 1958.

The bomb was an all-French effort. The government had previously denied any foreign technicians were used.

The United States had furnished France with enriched plutonium but all this had gone into other atomic energy projects.

Watch Out Men—Sunday Is Valentine's Day—Remember This Is Another Leap Year

By MARY ANITA LASETER

With tomorrow being Valentine's Day and 1960 being a Leap Year, this adventure with words will be about love.

There is probably no more universally enjoyed subject and more people down through the ages have had more to say about it than almost anything else. That's because there are so many kinds of love—spiritual love, "puppy love," brotherly love, passionate love, motherly love and even wicked love (like "the love of money is the root of all evil").

The poets extol love, the cynics sneer at it, and the Bible says it is more important than faith and hope. It has been said that "all the world loves a lover," and maybe that's why Valentine's Day is so popular.

Comics have a "field day" when it comes to this subject. Bob Hope has described love as being like hash, because you've got to have confidence in it to enjoy it. Two others define love as "a little sighing, a little crying, a little dying and a great deal of lying" or as "the feeling that makes a woman make a man make a fool of himself."

While Petrarch said love is the crowning grace of humanity, Lord Byron got a little more specific by saying that love is a woman's whole existence. Perhaps that's why women, like Elizabeth who penned the immortal verse about love which began with the question, "How do I love thee?"

It seems strange that a person who believed in God but denounced the Bible as his world could impart so much of the truth of that book in his definition of love.

Nevertheless, Robert Ingersoll, wrote one of the world's greatest tributes to love, and quoting it shall be my valentine to you.

"Love is the only law on life's dark cloud. It is the Morning and Evening Star; it shines upon the cradle of the babe, and sheds its radiance upon the quiet tomb. It is the mother of art, inspirer of poet, patriot and philosopher. It is the air and light of every heart builder of every home, kinder of every fire on every hearth. It was the first to dream of immortality.

"It fills the world with melody, for music is the voice of Love. Love is the magician, the enchantment, that changes the worthless things to joy, and makes right royal kings and queens of common clay. It is the perfume of the wondrous flower—the heart— and without that sacred passion, that divine swoon, we are less than beasts; but with it, earth is heaven and we are gods."

Americanism

Liberty, as proclaimed by law and constitutions, can never have full meaning without the added ingredients of Fraternity and Brotherhood; without the spirit of friendliness and unselfishness... love for one's fellows. Those powerful qualifying attributes help spell out what Americanism is.

When one sees a family unit, parents and children, with Bibles in hand, attending church to worship as they please... then one is witnessing Liberty in its finest and most fullsome forms, for that, too, is American. Freedom of religious worship is equally important, along with economic freedom and freedom from oppression, in America. Then worship God as you please but be sure to worship... that is Americanism.
